

Welcome to the PZ 50th “Watching Party” Kit!
A Note to the Host/Facilitator

We appreciate your interest in Project Zero’s work!

In this packet, we offer a few ideas for colleagues around the world who would like to join in the celebration of Project Zero’s 50th anniversary by watching the live stream or video recording of “Changes in Mind: Five Decades of Insights into Intelligence, Thinking, and Learning.” This collaborative address, delivered by Project Zero’s former and current directors, offers insights into the changing conceptions of mind that have emerged from Project Zero’s work of the past 50 years. Project Zero thanks our colleague and Senior Researcher, Tina Blythe, for compiling these PZ 50th Anniversary Conversation Starters.

While watching the live stream/video on its own can be instructive, we think the learning can be deepened through a shared watching experience followed by generative conversation that invites all participants to reflect on what they have heard and connect it to their own work and context.

To support you in facilitating this collaborative approach to learning from the live stream/video, we offer here a variety of suggestions for launching your watching party and for discussing what you’ve watched once the video has concluded. Recognizing that different groups will be working with different time constraints, we’ve offered some very short strategies (5 – 10 minutes) as well as some longer ones (15 – 25 minutes). These can be that can be combined with the 90 minute video to create a session that lasts anywhere from 1 hour, 45 minutes to 2 hours, 30 minutes.

Of course, these activities are only suggestions. We encourage you to adapt them in ways that make the most sense for your context—or to devise your own agenda and activities. If you do create your agenda and activities, we hope you'll share them with us and let us know how it goes! We also encourage you and your watching party attendees to share your thoughts on social media:
